Backstory

Born to wealthy parents living in Crossroads, Lupe has a rather average life and grew up to be an influencer. Her strict family often acting disapproving of her choices, Lupe travels in the hopes of making a life independent of them. She met Rat King as children and, despite her parents' disapproval, tried her best to help him out and act as a support system, which usually just involved bringing him food.

Personality

Guadalupe can seem loud, obnoxious and nosy upon first introduction, as her journalistic tendencies tend to sway her discussions with other people. That being said, while she is all of those things, she has a softer side and can be incredibly kind and giving. Lupe has a strong sense of justice and will point out things she perceives as unfair or wrong, even to her own detriment.

A true spokeswoman and journalist at heart, Lupe is never anything more than her authentic self, which can be rather overwhelming in large doses, and can push others away as a result. Despite this, she's a confident, outspoken and fashion-forward woman.
