Theodore Thunderbluff

There is no creature under Heaven or earth that can ever compare to the will of the Wildebeestfolk... And the one at the head of the pack, is a warrior.

-- [Grandbeest]

Theo is a human raised by wildebeests in the lands of Symphony. After losing his adopted parents and being banished by his sister, he went to live in the wilderness, until he met a group of heroes hoping to save Symphony from potential destruction. Armed with his mystical powers, super strength and magical gauntlets, he's ready to take on any challenge to protect his friends, especially his girlfriend Pudelle.

Backstory

Theo was found as a baby by Elazna Thunderbluff, a wildebeest warrior woman and wife to the current chief, Decanno Thunderbluff. The pair took a liking to the baby Theo, and adopted him as their son. Theo grew up alongside his adopted siblings, including his older-brother Vuno, sister Taranni, and his baby brother Lukki. Theo would eventually be taught the art of the "Wildeboost", a mystical art that allowed Theo to strengthen his body and soul by connecting with his ancestors. Despite not being a wildebeest, at the age of 10, Theo had almost mastered the art. Though eventually, tragedy would befall the family when Decanno and Elazna sacrificed themselves to defend the Grassland village from a scorching fire. Before Decanno passed, he gave his gauntlets to Theo.

Years later, a tournament was held to find a new leader for the tribe, and while Theo rose through the tournament with high expectations, he faltered when he saw his final opponent was Taranni. Rather than fight his sister, Theo willingly surrendered, making Taranni the new Chieftess. Infuriated by her brother's willingness to surrender,

Abilities

The Wildeboost Arts

An ancient art only thought usable by Wildebeests and Wildbeests Only. When used, the Wildeboost can augment a person's strength, speed, agility and endurance. It can grant temporary immunity to elemental attacks, and even heal the injured by a small amount. The only drawback is that Theo can only use three Wildeboosts per day, and one Maximum Wildeboost per week. After a dimensional mix-up, Theo also unlocked the Chieftain's Wildeboost which lasts longer, but takes more time to recharge.

Elemental Horns

Theo's horns serve as an Arcane Focus to fire off elemental attacks through. The elements are really up to his imagination, though his go-tos are usually, Fire, Water, Lightning, Nature and Ice. At first he had very little control over any Wind Elemental attacks, but after meeting his uncle, his control has since become much better. He can also augment these attacks with his horns.

Thruster Gauntlets

The last gift his father ever gave him, Theo's Thruster Gauntlets are powerful weapons. Made from metal found in a comet, and forged by the blacksmiths of the former King of Symphony, The Thruster Gauntlets have incredible durability. The gauntlets have a special trigger that can boost Theo's speed at a moment's notice, and also jettison him in the opposite direction of an attacker. They also allow him to use his special move, "The Rhino Rush" where he charges at full speed at an enemy, head first, to send them reeling. His gauntlets aren't immune to short-circuiting however, and can be rendered powerless if hit by a strong-enough electrical attack.

Strengths

Theo has an almost indomitable, optimistic fighting spirit that is difficult to break in most instances. When he faces a strong opponent he always tries to give it 110%, until he can't physically fight any longer. His mind is equally tough to crack, as most mental control attacks don't have any effect on him due to his willpower. But more often than not, he tries to find a peaceful resolution when facing an opponent that he knows isn't evil.

Weaknesses

Theo can be a fair bit gullible at times, as his knowledge of human kind is very limited. He himself is still under the partial belief that he is a wildebeest, even when people have undeniable proof that he is fully human, even his human uncle, Jean-Baptiste. But his greatest weaknesses seem to be when he's brought to the lowest of lows, it can take the help of a friend to get him back on his feet; and due to the wildfire that killed his adopted parents, Theo has a slight Pyrophobia that can occasionally render him frozen (the flames from his horns are an exception). He also has difficulty swimming in deep water.

Trivia

- If this were an animated series or radio-show, Theo's voice would most likely be either Sam Riegel or Aaron Campbell.
- Theo has been in prison (for a crime he didn't commit), where he picked up a knack for playing the harmonica.
- When not in his warrior suit, Theo has trouble seeing, due to his nearsightedness.

Author's Notes

Pudelle Ellsgood

I swear, our daughter is like a wild tornado in a young girl's body! Why just last week she scared off the son of that wealthy merchant from Taiko during our spaghetti banquet! It's like she doesn't even care about the potential repercussions!!!

-- [Pressatra Ellsgood]

Pudelle Rovington Ellsgood is a half-human half-rat girl from Pirate Port who's known for her thievery, despite her being a part of an aristocratic family. Pudelle grew up to be much like her biological father, a rascally, rebellious, and thieving Pirate of a girl. She enjoys tinkering and making all manner of gadgets to terrorize her opponents, though they have a bad habit of blowing up due to their shoddy construction. She grew up believing she'd never find her soul-mate, until she came face to face with Theo. The pair are an almost inseparable duo, with a habit of falling into misadventures by complete accident or by Pudelle's reckless sense of fun.

Backstory

Pudelle is the daughter of the illustrious aristocrat, Pressatra Ellsgood, and the devilish pirate, Skumm Blackwitch. Though she was raised believing she was the daughter of Raloran (her mother's fiancé at the time). She is nothing like Pressatra (save for her snarky attitude) or her "father", which has lead them to try and train her to act more ladylike. Those attempts failed, as she has scared of every suitor her parents have thrown her way, disappointing her mother to no ends. She has a chip on her shoulder for Captain Skreech, as he killed her biological father right in front of her. She ended up giving him his comeuppance, by robbing him of his riches alongside Theo. It was Theo's kindness and willingness to help her that made her fall in love with him.

Abilities

Scrap-Crafting

Pudelle has a knack for making her own weapons from random bits, bobs and junk she has gathered from hers and Theo's adventures. While most of her weapons can be described as "clunky", most of them have proven to be rather useful tools in combat, especially when she tinkers on them with her Wrenchcalibur. The only downside is that her weapons have a bad habit of... EXPLODING.

Thunder Cannon

Pudelle has learned to harness a ton of her tech-y energy into one of her signature weapons, The Thunder Bazooka. The product of a giant Tesla coil, the old shell of a bazooka, and a ton of stolen Cyheln circuitry, Puds' cannon is a powerful (albeit dangerous) weapon.

Wildeboost Locket

A gift given to her by Theo on Valentine's Day, Pudelle's locket allows her to use the same Wildeboosts as Theo, though she only has access to two per day.

Strengths

Pudelle is really good at distracting enemies, and even getting on their nerves if it means giving an open for a friend. Though when push comes to shove, Pudelle can easily hold her own with her quick speed, and her ratty tech weapons. She's also good with dismantling tech, or finding a weak spot in machinery.

Weaknesses

Pudelle unfortunately has a bad habit of underestimating her enemies, which can give her enemies an opening to knock her unconscious. And while her scrap-tech is powerful, it's highly unpredictable and can have dangerously volatile side-effects if her scrap-crafting is just a little off in execution. She can also go ballistic if she sees someone close to her, like Theo, in life-threatening danger.

Trivia

- If this was an animated series or radio show, I imagine Pudelle would be voiced by either Kimlinh Tran or Ashleigh Ball.
- Pudelle has a Texan accent.
- Pudelle has a deep-seated fear of snakes.
- Pudelle was able to convince her parents that Theo is the son of a military soldier, which earned her father's blessing (as he's a part of the Symphony Navy).
