Backstory

Simon was born as the prince of Dominion, a metahuman regime that controls most of the world. Simon was always regarded as an innocent soul by both family and friends who simply liked writing, maths and comic books. However this kindness only delivered him suffering by sympathising with humans, the eternal enemy of metahumans. Despite witnessing the deplorable acts humans committed, he couldn't help himself from caring for them especially since they neared extinction. He couldn't just betray the metahumans of Dominion, especially his family. This inner conflict brought strife to his head for years to the point where Simon decided that he couldn't choose either side. Instead he would work for both sides; supporting the kingdom of Dominion and supporting the human resistance. Though this eternal struggle rages in his head, one goal will always hold true for Simon: peace.

Power Name: Slipstream

A power that allows Simon to both control water and turn his body into water. When in liquid form, he can change any liquefied parts into whatever he wants like weapons or tools. He's even able to shapeshift into other people by coping with others ' appearances. He's completely immune to physical damage whilst in this liquid state and can even duplicate himself whenever he wants along with regenerating his own wounds so long as a single cell remains. Simon can also control any body mass of water and freely change its properties. Even liquids that have a high percentage of water are easy to control. ( e.g blood, Soda, etc. ) he can also travel through any body of water, no matter the size. With all these abilities, Simon possesses a large amount of potential. Water weapons: Simons able to make weapons from his water body or create weapons made out of water within seconds. These weapons have nearly the same strength as the original, though they lack the same durability.

Techniques:

Continuum Laser

Simon fires a highly pressurised stream of water from his hand, being able to cut through anything. One of Simon's most powerful attacks is as simple as a stream of water that can easily slice through steel in the matter of seconds. Though it can technically be fired anywhere on his body, it's primarily fired from Simon's hands.

Seaside Reflection

Simon creates clones made out of water being able to use them for a variety of uses. These clones have many purposes. They can increase the amount of incoming attacks, setup decoys, surveillance, etc. They either act on their own or follow actions given to them. They also share the same abilities as Simon, provided they have a constant score on water they can last forever. All knowledge the clones gain once merged with simon is given to him. Simon can manipulate his clones similar to water.
